INTRODUCTORY

TO THE TRADE:

Your steady and increasing patronage has made it possible for us to add many new items to our line, and this issue of our catalogue contains many new articles. It is gratifying to us to know that DASCO quality is so popular that we are continually being asked to make new items. We are very thankful for the business you have favored us with and our aim is to merit your continued good will by furnishing you the utmost in quality at fair prices.

A WORD TO THE CONSUMER:

If you want good towns you must have good merchants; to have good merchants who can afford to carry a complete stock for your convenience you must patronize them. Therefore, believing as we do, that the retail trade belongs to the retail store, our products are distributed through local merchants.

On the following pages you will find listed one of the outstanding quality lines of tools and cutlery.

The special formula alloy steel used for tools with a cutting edge insures keenness of edge and long life. The workmanship, finish and frequent inspections are of the highest order.

Our aim has always been to confine our production to useful articles and avoid duplications or obsolete patterns. On the other hand, cold chisels, star drills, screw drivers, auger bits and knives, for example, are carried in a variety of styles and sizes to meet the demands of nearly every job.

House of Ten

Our goods are priced on the unit of ten basis. All articles are numbered. Our boxes are labeled on both ends. These conveniences make it easy for you to order by mail, and we give mail orders our best attention, to insure prompt delivery; and we aim to ship just what is wanted. Your co-operation in ordering by number will help us eliminate mistakes.

DASCO cold chisels are made from a special alloy steel, heat treated by a special process that produces a very durable edge, dipped in rich black lacquer and polished head and blade. Polished parts dipped in rust preventing lacquer.

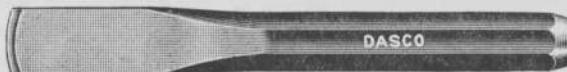

They will give unusual service and if they become dull can be re-sharpened with a common file, which will save time and money. When sharpening chisels on an emery grinder great care should be taken to avoid overheating, as this ruins the temper of any tool.

DASCO chisels are sold by diameter of stock, and not by the width of the cutting edge. For example: Our $\frac{5}{8}$ " cold chisel is made of $\frac{5}{8}$ " octagon steel and has a $\frac{3}{4}$ " cutting edge.

Each and every tool is numbered for easy reference in re-ordering.

When ordering extra length or heavy duty chisels it is well to bear in mind the fact that $\frac{1}{2}$ " chisels will not do the work of 1" chisels. In long chisels it is better to buy the larger sizes as they prove the most economical for heavy work.

Star drills are drop forged from high grade octagon steel, with deep and long flutes for good clearance. Also long round section behind flutes for added clearance. Properly used, they will not bind or clog. The points are sharp and properly centered for easy starting and accurate placing of holes.

Owing to the fact that there are so many different makes of expansion shields that require different sizes of star drills we recommend that you refer to expansion shield specifications for size of drill needed.

These blades are made of a special steel for the purpose, milled teeth and accurately set. Our blades are flexible, the teeth only being hardened. Fast cutting, tough and durable.

Suggestions

Strain all blades well in frame.

Start cut with light pressure, increasing pressure as blade wears. Press firmly on forward stroke, letting up on backward stroke.

A new saw should never be used in an old cut.

Use 18 teeth for steel pipe, hard metals, angle iron, cast iron and bronze.

Use 24 teeth for general purpose work, brass, copper, drill rod and tubing.

Use 32 teeth for light tubing and thin sheet metal.

21 gauge blades should be used on light slow speed machines only. Use a good cutting compound on high speed power machines.

Knives and cleavers on the following pages are made of the highest possible quality steel for the purpose. The larger styles are hand forged, which further refines and strengthens the steel. Each knife and cleaver is individually heat treated and scientifically tempered by the latest and most modern methods. Every precaution is taken to insure a supremely uniform article of high quality. Keen edges and toughness are soon felt by the user. Handles are made of hard woods, well seasoned, and are attached with over size, tubular brass and nickel silver rivets, except in the case of cleaver handles, which are fastened with a positive locking screw. Hand-made is a fact, not just a theory, with DASCO.

POCKET KNIVES

The following blade numbers are used to designate the blades used in each knife, in addition to the illustration, and can be referred to for verification.

We have attempted to fill the need for pocket knives without having a large number of obsolete patterns. Our knives are made from high grade materials by men who have been schooled only along quality lines.

POCKET KNIFE ASSORTMENTS

Neat trays, as illustrated above, are furnished with purchases of twelve or more knives, upon request. Any desired assortment can be made up.

General Care of Pocket Knives

It is the duty of every dealer or salesman who sells a pocket knife to advise the purchaser on the care that it should have. If the following points are briefly impressed, it will insure long life to the knife, avoid abuse of the same, and rarely will there be an unsatisfactory knife.

TO SHARPEN

Use a good oil stone or whetting hone, one that is medium fine is best. It is important to hold the blade at a slight angle to the face of the stone, about 20° is right, so a slight bevel along the cutting edge will be produced, the same as you will find on the blade when it is new. The operation of sharpening should be to draw the blade against the cutting edge from heel to point. Under no circumstances should a rough stone or dry grinding wheel be used, as it will spoil the cutting edge.

AVOID RUST

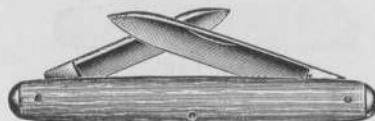

Many pocket knives are ruined by allowing them to become badly rusted on the inside. This can be avoided by an occasional cleaning with an oiled cloth or chamois skin, the same as a gun is kept in good condition. Moisture is the principal cause of the rust; therefore all dealers located at, or near the seashore, or in the South, where the climate is damp and humid at times, should emphasize the necessity of preventing rust.

A pocket knife, like any machine, requires lubrication; therefore, OIL THE JOINTS. A drop of good oil in each joint of a knife occasionally is absolutely necessary for smooth operation.

IMPORTANT

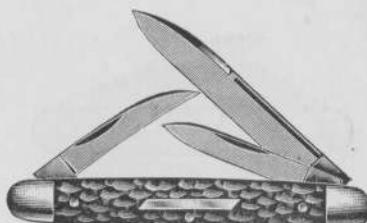

Knives are fully guaranteed against defects in either material or workmanship, but knives that have been abused by the owner through rough usage, improper sharpening, lack of oil, badly rusted, or worn out, will not be replaced.
